Bell System's Strike Deadline 6 a. m. Sunday

Fayette Exchanges Mark Time as Negotiations Stall

The five local exchanges of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. marked time Saturday as contract negotiations between the company and the Communications Workers of America were reported deadlocked in Cleveland and a strike deadline neared.

Although 18,600 Ohio Bell workers are poised to walk off their jobs Sunday morning unless some type of agreement is reached, local officials of the company were unable to say what effect a statewide walkout might have in the Washington C. H. area.

THE CWA represents Ohio Bell's 45 non-management employees in the Washington C. H. area, but not all of the 45 are members of the union.

A strike is expected to have little initial effect on dial systems anywhere in the state and the Washington C. H., Jeffersonville, Bloomington, Milledgeville and New Holland exchanges are dial-operated.

Ohio Bell officials have announced that supervisors will man switchboards wherever necessary. Long distance service probably would be slowed and repair service would be hampered in many communities.

Negotiators met until almost midnight in Cleveland. In a prepared statement issued shortly before the meeting recessed for the night, the union said negotiations had reached an impasse.

The union charged the company with acting "in bad faith by re-introducing issues that have already been resolved."

The situation "does not look good," a CWA spokesman said. In Cleveland, he added that the union was prepared to negotiate up to the strike deadline, 6 a. m. Sunday. The old contract expires at midnight tonight.

A company proposal for wage increases ranging from $1.50 to $4 was rejected by the union as inadequate.

Ohio Bell provides service to 19 cities and 26 smaller communities.

10 Circleville Operators Return

CIRCLEVILLE—Ten telephone operators who walked off their jobs at the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. here were back on the job Friday night.

Meanwhile, company and union officials were meeting Saturday morning to iron out grievances that led to the walkout.

The operators walked out over the firing last month of a fellow operator. Saturday's meeting apparently was for the purpose of determining whether she would be rehired.

45 GIs Discharged, Flunk IQ Examination

FT. LEONARD WOOD, Mo. (AP)—An Army spokesman said Friday that 45 recruits were given honorable discharges here because of low scores on an intelligence test.

The discharges were part of a Defense Department program to keep the Army within its 1958-59 budget. Trimming of Army strength 50,000 men by Jan. 1 is the aim.

Student Driving Regulations To Be Enforced

School Rules Backed by Police

Police Chief D. Vaiden Long declared Friday his department will go "every step of the way" to help Washington C. H. High School Principal Kaye Blosser enforce his restricted-driving regulation.

"I've heard rumors that some of the youngsters tried to tell the school the police said they couldn't enforce it. I want them to know that we can, we intend to and we will."

Blosser, new WHS principal, last week sent a letter to the parents of all high school students saying that only students who can show "just cause," would be allowed to bring cars to school this year.

"Wherever they got the idea we couldn't enforce it—and I do not believe they got it from us—they'd better get rid of it now; it isn't so," the chief said.

"The youngsters are the responsibility of the school from the time they leave home until the time they get home," he said, adding: "The school has laid down this rule and asked our help enforcing it."

"And believe me, we will."

BLOSSER's ruling said that before a student would be permitted to bring a car to school, he must show "just cause," and must have the approval of a parent. "Just cause," statements would be "thoroughly checked and approved if found worthy."

"I don't intend to do any more or any less than Blosser asked," the chief said, warning: "but he can count on me."

Text of the Blosser letter to parents follows: "Each year our streets and highways are becoming more congested due to the ever-increasing number of automobiles. The danger to pedestrians continues to increase."

"Many of our young drivers are unaware of the great danger that a speeding or recklessly driven automobile is to the lives of your boys and girls."

"In an effort to make our city a safer place for all the boys and girls when going and coming from school, and to relieve congestion around the school, we are putting the following rules into effect as of September 4, 1957:

(1) Only those students who can show just cause will be permitted to drive to and from school;

(2) A student must complete the form below and return it to the Principal's Office;

(3) If employed, a statement should be submitted from the employer as to hours of employment if a car is needed to get the student to and from work.

"The reason given below will be thoroughly checked and approved if found worthy."

"If the student violates the rules of good driving during the school day, we shall expect the cooperation of the parents in withdrawing their permission for the student to drive to and from school upon the complaint of school officials. Safety is the obligation of every

President Eyes Mideast Crisis

Quarantine Hinted For Red-Tainted Syria

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower flew back to Washington today amid reports he is ready to speak out in a new move to quarantine the Communist infiltration in Syria.

Eisenhower's trip from his Newport, R. I., vacation headquarters came against this background:

1. Diplomatic officials disclosed consideration is being given to a possible second airlift of American arms to a neighbor of Syria-Iraq this time.

2. The Air Force readied eight big C124 Globemasters to fly U.S. weapons, including 106 millimeter recoilless rifles, to jittery Jordan.

3. An all-out publicity boom apparently was underway in Amman, Jordan's capital, to spotlight the arrival of airlifted arms there Monday. A muscle-flexing parade of the weapons was expected, with 200 invitations sent out for ceremonies featuring a speech by U.S. Ambassador Lester L. Mallory.

4. Secretary of State Dulles was said to favor a strong presidential warning the United States would consider its own vital interests threatened by any encroachment on Syria's neighbors.

LAST APRIL Eisenhower said that maintaining the territorial integrity of Jordan, threatened at the time by a Communist coup, was a vital U. S. interest.

Lebanon, another neighbor of Syria, is reported pressing the United States for a public reaffirmation of the Middle East resolution of last March. Approved by Congress at Eisenhower's request, this document pledged U.S. military-economic backing for any Middle East country with the will to resist Red intrusion.

Jordan was chosen first for the arms airlift, officials said, because young King Hussein's regime is considered the most seriously threatened by the Communist take-over of power in Syria.

51 Beauties Eye Naming of Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Fifty-one beauties are primping for the ball tonight where one of them will be crowned Miss America 1958.

The nation's queen of talent and beauty will step forward to the stage of a crowded Convention Hall to receive the crown to be surrendered by the present Miss America, Marian Ann McKnight of Manning, S. C.

The 10 semifinalists will be announced first. Soon, the field will be narrowed to five and then the week-long beauty contest will reach its climax when the girl judged the most talented and beautiful in the land will step forward to be crowned.

The final preliminary beauty and talent competition ended Friday night with three gorgeous contestants from Pennsylvania, Oregon and North Carolina emerging with top honors.

The talent competition resulted in a tie between Jennie Rebecca Blatchford, a 23-year-old blue-eyed blonde from Holidaysburg, Pa., and Judith Faye Hansen, 19, also a blue-eyed blonde, from Astoria, Ore.

Miss North Carolina, Elaine Herndon, 18, walked off with the swim suit competition.

Miss Blatchford performed a sparkling baton twirling demonstration and Miss Hansen sang from the opera "La Boheme."

Underground Park Fund Given Nod

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Underground Parking Commission Friday authorized issue of $5 million in bonds to finance a garage under the Statehouse grounds.

The commission will sue its secretary, Alvin Alexander, to issue a prospectus on the bond. Alexander opposed issuing the bonds in a vote. He said he questions the constitutionality of the act creating the commission and exempting the property from taxes.

The move will bring about a quick Ohio Supreme Court test of the project's legality. The same procedure was followed by the Ohio Turnpike Commission, which faced court tests from various sources.

Cuban Troops Quell Second Rebel Outbreak

Batista Government Claims All Is Quiet In Interior Capitals

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Tanks and armored cars manned by heavily armed troops patrolled the streets of Cienfuegos today after the second outbreak of rebel action in two days.

Unconfirmed reports indicated the total of dead and wounded might reach as high as 125.

President Fulgencio Batista's armed forces were on the alert throughout Cuba but reports from the six provincial capitals said calm prevailed.

Army planes and Coast Guard vessels kept a coastal watch to prevent any landings of reinforcements for rebel leader Fidel Castro.

The second bloody outbreak in the south central Cuban sugar port of Cienfuegos occurred Friday after the government said it had completely smashed the previous day's attack.

Apparently some diehard dissidents had hidden in buildings when airborne troops and armor supported by warplanes quelled the first outbreak.

GOVERNMENT planes, tanks, armored cars and troops carried out a furious assault against the small bands of rebel holdouts.

The military command said 40 to 50 rebels were killed or wounded in the first attack while 12 government troops were killed and 43 wounded. Telephoned reports from Cienfuegos indicated casualties on both sides in the second attack might reach 50 persons killed or wounded.

Street patrols hunted possible survivors of the original dissident group which was believed to have numbered up to 400.

Cubans in the naval base city identified the revolt leader as a former navy lieutenant, Jose San Roman Toledo.

He reportedly called himself a "colonel" of the revolutionary movement supporting Castro, who operates from mountains of south-east Cuba. San Roman was believed to have fled to the hills behind Cienfuegos.

Cubans credited San Roman, aided by sailors, with first capturing the Cayo Loco naval station near Cienfuegos at dawn Thursday. Moving into town, he picked up support from the 60 maritime police and distributed naval station arms to civilian sympathizers of Castro.

They captured the national police headquarters and controlled most of the city of 52,000 persons. Then Army troops began to arrive after noon.

After bloody street battles, the government claimed the revolt was smashed.

Arkansas Guards Stop Students, Newsmen

Ike, Brownell Hold Parley On Arkansas Racial Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower flew back to the capital today for high level talks on racial segregation problems.

The President went immediately to the White House and a conference with Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell on the Arkansas integration crisis.

He was to meet later with other officials for talks on foreign affairs and government financing.

The President intends to return to his Newport vacation headquarters tonight. He probably will stop on the way at Baltimore, Md., for a look-in at the debutante party for his young niece, Ruth Eisenhower.

In Little Rock, Arkansas, Gov. Orval E. Faubus has challenged the federal courts and the President in using the National Guard to bar Negroes from attending classes in Central High School.

Eisenhower has called on the governor to cooperate in the court ruling calling for racial integration and has declared he will use every legal means at his command to uphold the Constitution.

In Newport Friday James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, told a news conference the President has not changed his stand against the use of federal troops to enforce integration.

At a Washington news conference last July 17, Eisenhower was asked whether he was aware he had authority under a post civil war law "to use military force to put through school integration in the South." The President replied:

"I can't imagine any set of circumstances that would ever induce me to send federal troops into any area to enforce the order of a federal court, because I believe the common sense of America will never require it."

Asked whether there has been any change in Eisenhower's position on that matter, Hagerty replied "no."

Asked then whether the President still is against the use of force to obtain compliance with federal court orders on school integration, the press secretary said "yes."

But Hagerty said it looks to him as if the situation is the exact opposite of what civil rights opponents feared—that it is the state government, not the federal government, which has resorted to force in an integration dispute.

Hagerty declined comment on a new Faubus telegram to Eisenhower offering to give the FBI certain information which the governor said led him to call out the National Guard in Little Rock to preserve, as he put it, peace and order.

In Washington, Brownell instructed the FBI to accept from Faubus any information he wants to present for using National Guardsmen to block integration.

Altogether It Was a Grate Evening

You Just Gotta Be Patient!

By JACK AYER

It was man against nature at the corner of Court and Main Sts. Friday evening, and man—falling into an almost humdrum pattern—won again.

The man in the case was Fire Chief George Hall. The nature was the man made ill-nature of a sidewalk grating which kept a pretty little girl from her high school ring.

Ill-nature seemed to have all the natural advantages, and for awhile it looked like man would fall victim of his environment. But Chief Hall, using as his only weapons a dose of sweet reason and a hook-headed wire, finally wrested the ring from the cold earth—while a crowd of thousands (well, three boys, a drunk and a dog) cheered.

THE STORY of the fire chief's triumph is a drama in real life played out in 30 short minutes, each one reeking with suspense. Some highlights:

7:30 p. m.: The lady in the case and a girlfriend came to the fire station looking for help. The lady's ring had fallen through a grating in front of the First National Bank.

7:33 p. m. Chief Hall arrived at the scene, wire in hand. Search, with the aid of a flashlight, begins.

7:34 p. m. Boy with ice cream cone walks past, turns, returns.

Judge To Rule On Delay in Integration

Little Rock Board Files Request for Indefinite Stall

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A dramatic break in the struggle between Gov. Orval Faubus and federal authority over the volatile Little Rock integration question may come from U.S. District Court here today.

U. S. District Judge Ronald N. Davies of Fargo, N. D., is expected to rule on the city school board's request that integration be legally postponed for an indefinite period so tension can ease and education at the school can return to normal.

Little Rock has held the nation's attention since Monday night when Gov. Faubus, in a dramatic move to halt integration, sent a company of National Guardsmen to take over the school campus. He said his reason was to head off violence.

School opened Tuesday with about 2,000 white students walking to classes through a ring of Guardsmen bristling with rifles and bayonets. Wednesday the Guardsmen blocked entrance of nine Negroes which the school board had previously enrolled and found eligible.

CROWDS VARYING from hand fulls to an estimated 700, all white and predominantly pro-segregation, have showed up at the school grounds daily but no violence has resulted.

At the court hearing today the school board will give testimony to back up its claim that since Faubus placed troops around the high school the tension has made teaching difficult.

Thurgood Marshall, attorney for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said the NAACP "can't go along" with the postponement request.

Marshall arrived here Friday from New York to help represent the nine Negro students.

Marshall conceded that the eyes of the segregated Southern states would be on Little Rock and the outcome here could set a precedent that would have direct bearing on the integration question elsewhere.

Generally two broad courses of action could result from the court action today. A temporary suspension of the U. S. District Court integration order might produce a lull in the tension and a temporary truce between Faubus and federal authority.

If the court denies the request the struggle would have to resume in case Faubus did not retreat from his stand.

If the governor had any idea of backing down it was not apparent because Guardsmen, although reduced to a token force, were ordered to stay on duty at the high school this weekend.

AND A FRESH company was called up for duty Monday at the school to relieve the men on duty this week.

Faubus' only move which could be construed as conciliatory was an offer Friday to have staff aides and his personal attorney turn over to federal authorities his evidence that violence was imminent in Little Rock when he sent troops to the school.

The governor's contention is that he did not technically move to prevent integration but to preserve peace and order. However, he admitted freely that his action had the effect of denying Negroes admittance to the previously all-white school.

But Hagerty said it looks to him as if the situation is the exact opposite of what civil rights opponents feared—that it is the state government, not the federal government, which has resorted to force in a integration dispute.

Hagerty declined comment on a new Faulstich telegram to Eisenhower offering to give the FBI certain information which the governor said led him to call out the National Guard in Little Rock to preserve, as he put it, peace and order.

In Washington, Brownell instructed the FBI to accept from Faubus any information he wants to present for using National Guardsmen to block integration.

Altogether It Was a Grate Evening

You Just Gotta Be Patient!

By JACK AYER

It was man against nature at the corner of Court and Main Sts. Friday evening, and man—falling into an almost humdrum pattern—won again.

The man in the case was Fire Chief George Hall. The nature was the man made ill-nature of a sidewalk grating which kept a pretty little girl from her high school ring.

Ill-nature seemed to have all the natural advantages, and for awhile it looked like man would fall victim of his environment. But Chief Hall, using as his only weapons a dose of sweet reason and a hook-headed wire, finally wrested the ring from the cold earth—while a crowd of thousands (well, three boys, a drunk and a dog) cheered.

THE STORY of the fire chief's triumph is a drama in real life played out in 30 short minutes, each one reeking with suspense. Some highlights:

7:30 p. m.: The lady in the case and a girlfriend came to the fire station looking for help. The lady's ring had fallen through a grating in front of the First National Bank.

7:33 p. m. Chief Hall arrived at the scene, wire in hand. Search, with the aid of a flashlight, begins.

7:34 p. m. Boy with ice cream cone walks past, turns, returns.

Judge To Rule On Delay in Integration

Little Rock Board Files Request for Indefinite Stall

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A dramatic break in the struggle between Gov. Orval Faubus and federal authority over the volatile Little Rock integration question may come from U.S. District Court here today.

U. S. District Judge Ronald N. Davies of Fargo, N. D., is expected to rule on the city school board's request that integration be legally postponed for an indefinite period so tension can ease and education at the school can return to normal.

Little Rock has held the nation's attention since Monday night when Gov. Faubus, in a dramatic move to halt integration, sent a company of National Guardsmen to take over the school campus. He said his reason was to head off violence.

School opened Tuesday with about 2,000 white students walking to classes through a ring of Guardsmen bristling with rifles and bayonets. Wednesday the Guardsmen blocked entrance of nine Negroes which the school board had previously enrolled and found eligible.

CROWDS VARYING from handfuls to an estimated 700, all white and predominantly pro-segregation, have shown up at the school grounds daily but no violence has resulted.

At the court hearing today the school board will give testimony to back up its claim that since Faubus placed troops around the high school the tension has made teaching difficult.

Thurgood Marshall, attorney for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said the NAACP "can't go along" with the postponement request.

Marshall arrived here Friday from New York to help represent the nine Negro students.

Marshall conceded that the eyes of the segregated Southern states would be on Little Rock and the outcome here could set a precedent that would have direct bearing on the integration question elsewhere.

Generally two broad courses of action could result from the court action today. A temporary suspension of the U. S. District Court integration order might produce a lull in the tension and a temporary truce between Faubus and federal authority.

If the court denies the request the struggle would have to resume in case Faubus did not retreat from his stand.

If the governor had any idea of backing down it was not apparent because Guardsmen, although reduced to a token force, were ordered to stay on duty at the high school this weekend.

AND A FRESH company was called up for duty Monday at the school to relieve the men on duty this week.

Faubus' only move which could be construed as conciliatory was an offer Friday to have staff aides and his personal attorney turn over to federal authorities his evidence that violence was imminent in Little Rock when he sent troops to the school.

The governor's contention is that he did not technically move to prevent integration but to preserve peace and order. However, he admitted freely that his action had the effect of denying Negroes admittance to the previously all-white school.

Chicken Projects Produce Profits

COLUMBUS—Ohio's Chicken-of-Tomorrow contestants this year received average returns of 18½ cents a bird on their 100-bird entries, according to Emil Malinovsky, Ohio State University extension poultryman.

In a summary of the 1957 contest, Malinovsky noted that while the average contestant received a return of $18.53, district winners received $23.57. All returns were figured on a basis of 24 cents a pound.

"Although the prevailing market price was 21 and 22 cents a pound during the period of the district contests, all contestants received 26 and 27 cents a pound for the pounds of live bird brought in for actual judging," the extension poultryman said.

Malinovsky explained that of the 159 starting entries, 148 completed the 9-week contest. About 20 percent of the contestants were girls.

THE EFFICIENT use of feed reflected in profit per bird. Contestants whose birds gained a pound in weight for each 2 to 2½ pounds of feed consumed showed profits nearly double those of contestants whose birds gained a pound for every 2½ to 3 pounds of feed consumed.

The average production cost for all entries, Malinovsky said, was $60.23, compared to $60.81 for the district winners. However, the slightly higher cost for the district winners resulted in twenty-five pounds more chicken produced.

Contestants included 4-H club members, Future Farmers of America and Future Homemakers of America. They started the contest with 100 day-old chicks which they fed for a nine-week period, then selected five of their best cockerels and five of their best pullets to be dressed and judged at district contests.

Bluegills Thrive in Farm Ponds

COLUMBUS — Catching fish is a cliché when you have a pond full of "trained" bluegills. You just throw in a baited hook or fly and pull out fish right and left.

You must have the fish "trained" though, like Lawrence Halliday of Lodi has. He has been training the bluegills in his farm pond for a couple of years. He's done this by feeding the fish a daily ration of bread crumbs.

Simply by throwing in the water Halliday now can "call up" a whole school of bluegills in a matter of a few minutes.

OTHER POND OWNERS in the state have accomplished the same feat, according to Robert Davis, Ohio State University extension wildlife specialist, who says the "trained fish" idea is a good method of enhancing a bluegill catch. Some anglers have reported catching fish at a rate of two a minute where the feeding practice has been followed.

Most farm ponds in Ohio, Davis says, either have or face the hazard of containing too many bluegills. An oversupply in a farm pond often results in small, undernourished fish. There isn't enough food in the pond to go around. When the food is scarce the bluegills eat bass eggs, thus cutting down the bass population.

A properly balanced pond should supply a catch of about one bass to each 10 bluegills, Davis points out.

So, his advice is: don't worry about a pond getting fished out of bluegills. When you pull a nice mass from its water, chances are you're just helping to improve the fishing there next year.

Tear Gas Found Durable Control For Radish Pest

WOOSTER—Radish yellows, a disease that has been causing increasingly heavy losses, can be controlled by treating the soil, an Ohio plant pathologist has announced.

Chloropicrin, or tear gas, was the most durable and effective pesticide of 20 tested by Dr. J. D. Wilson on the soil-inhabiting organism. Mylon and Vapam were next in line to chloropicrin in knockout power. Mixtures such as chloropicrin plus Mylon also controlled radish yellows.

This disease of radishes is caused by a Fusarium which is most active during the hot months. Since four or five crops of radishes are usually grown each year, the "bug" has a fine chance of becoming established and multiplying in the soil.

It's necessary that the soil be treated each year before planting radish seeds, Dr. Wilson says. He made his studies both in the field and in the greenhouse. Two chemicals used, PRD and PCNB, actually speeded up development of radish yellows and damage was even worse than in check plots.

Weather on the earth is affected by sunspots, which have been described as great storms on the surface of the sun.

What To Do about Those Pests

September Bug Alert

By W. W. MONTGOMERY

BOX ELDER BUGS frequently infest box elder trees and are often reported in the fall clustered on the tree trunks. As they mature they leave the tree and seek shelter in the walls of buildings and other protected places where they pass the winter.

When they enter homes they become a nuisance although they do not feed on household furnishings, buildings, or persons. Box elder bugs are difficult to control and great persistence may be necessary.

Frequent applications of Chlor-dane (1 gal. of 45 per cent emulsion in 9 gals. of water), or Dieldrin (1 quart of 15.8 per cent emulsion in 8 gals. of water) are effective. Thoroughly wet all surfaces where bugs are congregated.

THE CORN LEAF APHID has been very abundant this summer on both corn and sorghum. There plant lice are usually a minor problem in Ohio, but factors favoring their development were apparently present this year. They often increase to tremendous numbers within a short time and also disappear equally fast due to work of predators and parasites.

The value of spraying corn to control these aphids is questionable, except under extreme circumstances. These aphids have disappeared in many southern and central Ohio fields without treatment, whereas in northern Ohio spraying has been necessary in some areas. The lack of rain in these areas has apparently accentuated the damage done by the aphids.

GRUBS are often responsible for the dead, brown areas in lawns. These may be either the larvae of Japanese beetles, or June beetles. They feed on the roots of grasses and usually can be found here by removing the dead grass.

Lawns can be made "grub proof" by applying any one of the following insecticides as a spray or as a dust: Chlordane, Dieldrin, Heptachlor, or Aldrin. For the average home-owner, Chlordane emulsion can be used at the rate of 1 cup of 45 per cent emulsion in 5 gals. of water for each 1,000 square feet. This solution can be applied with a sprinkling can. A single treatment will remain effective for several years.

HACKBERRY PSYLLIDS are tiny insects similar to plant lice. They develop in the gall-like growths which are present on the upper surface of hackberry leaves. They emerge in the fall and are often reported clustered on screens or entering homes.

An aerosol bomb containing Pyrethrum and DDT will give temporary relief inside the home.

HESSIAN FLY is still an insect which demands our attention. It is the most destructive insect attacking wheat in Ohio and appears to be returning as an important problem. Community-wide cooperation is necessary to adequately prevent losses from Hessian fly.

Wheat should not be sown until after the "fly-free" date.

A map showing the fly-free dates will be published in the Sept. 7 issue of the Ohio Farmer. Prevention or destruction of volunteer wheat is also valuable, but often impracticable. A new variety of wheat called Dual has recently been released from Indiana which is resistant to Hessian fly. Farmers, who want to plant before the fly-free date, should use only this resistant variety whose agronomic characteristics are acceptable in Ohio.

HORSE FLIES and deer flies have been unusually abundant in Ohio this summer. Unfortunately, these flies are very difficult to control. The larvae or maggots live in moist soil usually near swamps, ponds, lakes, or streams. It is impractical in most regions to eliminate these breeding areas. The only chemical control is frequent applications (13 days) of pyrethrum plus synergists. Some relief can be obtained by keeping animals in during the day and allowing them to graze at night, since the flies do not bite at night.

SPITTLEBUGS can be controlled by a fall treatment. Spraying legume fields between Sept. 1 and 10 with DDT (3 quarts 25 per cent emulsion per acre), or Methoxy-chlor (3 quarts 25 per cent emulsion per acre) is effective in preventing the adults from laying eggs. Since more eggs are deposited in new seedlings, fall treatment is most effective in these fields.

An average of one bug per sweep or a bug net is sufficient to warrant spraying. Fall treatment eliminates the necessity for a spring treatment and also prevents any residue problem.

Butler County Lad Winner of 4-H Electric Project

COLUMBUS—Tom Keller, 16, of Butler County, is the 1957 state winner of the 4-H Electric Project. "Live and Play the Electric Way," reports D. M. Byg, extension agricultural engineer, Ohio State University.

This year's project consisted of the installation of a yard lantern and the building of a portable fluorescent cornice light for his room.

He will receive a gold watch and a trip to the Ohio 4-H Club Congress as his award.

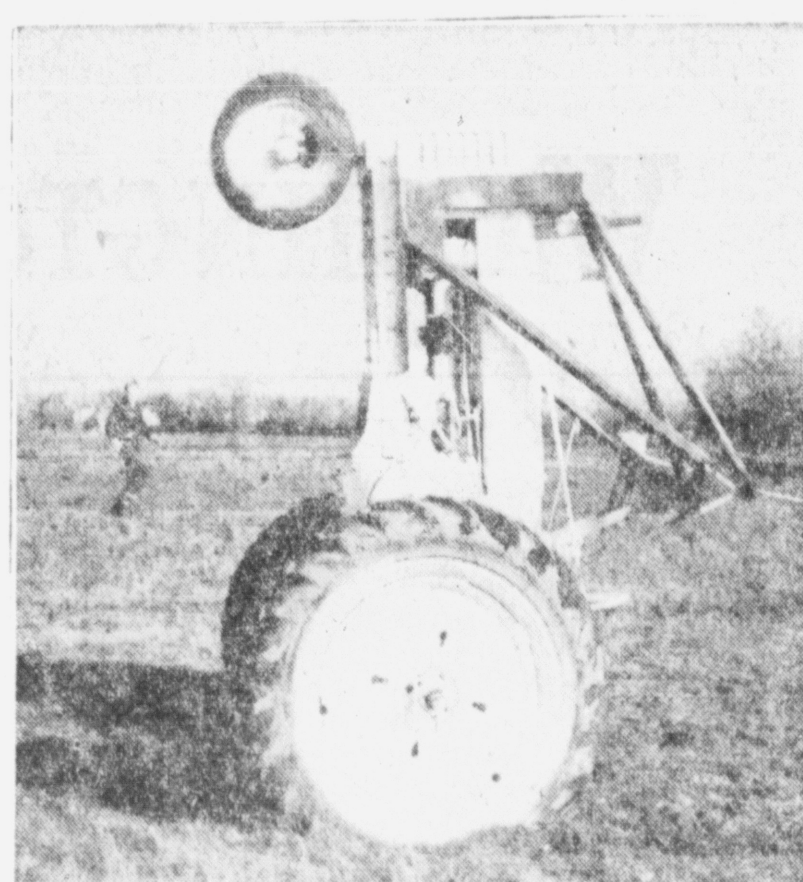

District winners from the other three extension districts are: Warren Wright, 16, of Hanover; Virginia Louise Morris, Powell, and John H. Marshall, Marysville.

All awards for the electric project are furnished by the Ohio Farm Electrification Council.

THERE IS NO PROBLEM in tipping over a tractor -- and perhaps killing, or at least injuring, yourself. In the interest of farm safety, a demonstration of what not to do will be a highlight of the All Ohio Pork Producers Picnic to be held at the fairground Sept. 14.

Tractor-Tipping Demonstration On Ohio Pork Picnic Program

The Ted will "die" in a tractor-tipping demonstration at the Fayette County Fairground next Saturday, Sept. 14, as a part of the All-Ohio Pork Picnic.

Ted is the straw-filled dummy who rides the demonstration tractor when it moves into death traps and upsides.

He's the nervous sort, a scatter-brain who does everything wrong. He loses his head easily. When he gets too close to an unshielded power take-off shaft, he just throws up his arms and goes all to pieces.

Ted's tragedy-of-errors routine is designed to show how not to drive a farm tractor, explains W. W. Montgomery, county agricultural agent, who points out that last year 58 persons in Ohio were killed and hundreds of others crippled because of tractor misuse.

The demonstration tractor is equipped with a protective frame, remote controls and other safety features to shield it from damage. The actual operator stands on the ground and maneuvers it by means of lines attached to the controls. Mercury switches stop the engine when the tractor overturns.

THOSE ATTENDING the demonstration will see the tractor flip over backwards when a heavy load is hitched to its axle instead of its properly adjusted drawbar. They will see the machine roll over sideways when a six-inch block is thrown under the inside rear wheel with the tractor traveling six miles an hour in a 40-foot circle. They will watch the demonstrators put out a gasoline fire, show what constitutes proper tractor lighting and how to use red flags when traveling on the highway.

The Pork Producers Assn. of Fayette County have arranged for the demonstration to help promote a statewide campaign to reduce accidents caused by misuse of the farm tractor.

Creep feed these vitamin packed pellets to young pigs at 5 days of age. Your pigs will reach early weaning at 4 to 5 weeks, maintain rapid growth — and soon be on their profit way to pork chops.

RED ROSE PIG STARTER PELLETS help to grow young pigs in a hurry for this reason: they supplement the sow's milk, and supply additional vitamins and antibiotics which permit the litter to be weaned earlier without setbacks in growth. The high antibiotics and vitamin levels in RED ROSE PIG STARTER PELLETS help prevent scouring, insure against anemia and develop vigor.

Pigs fed RED ROSE PIG STARTER PELLETS grow more uniformly and reach market weights earlier. So, feed these pellets to your pigs. Remember, better pork profits come from better early feeding.

THERE IS NO PROBLEM in tipping over a tractor -- and perhaps killing, or at least injuring, yourself. In the interest of farm safety, a demonstration of what not to do will be a highlight of the All Ohio Pork Producers Picnic to be held at the fairground Sept. 14.

Tractor-Tipping Demonstration On Ohio Pork Picnic Program

Tragic Ted will "die" in a tractor-tipping demonstration at the Fayette County Fairground next Saturday, Sept. 14, as a part of the All-Ohio Pork Picnic.

Ted is the straw-filled dummy who rides the demonstration tractor when it moves into death traps and upsets.

He's the nervous sort, a scatter-brain who does everything wrong. He loses his head easily. When he gets too close to an unshielded power take-off shaft, he just throws up his arms and goes all to pieces.

Ted's tragedy-of-errors routine is designed to show how not to drive a farm tractor, explains W. W. Montgomery county agricultural agent, who points out that last year 58 persons in Ohio were killed and hundreds of others crippled because of tractor misuse.

The demonstration tractor is equipped with a protective frame, remote controls and other safety features to shield it from damage. The actual operator stands on the ground and maneuvers it by means of lines attached to the controls. Mercury switches stop the engine when the tractor overturns.

THOSE ATTENDING the demonstration will see the tractor flip over backwards when a heavy load is hitched to its axle instead of its properly adjusted drawbar. They will see the machine roll over sideways when a six-inch block is thrown under the inside rear wheel with the tractor traveling six miles an hour in a 40-foot circle. They will watch the demonstrators put out a gasoline fire, show what constitutes proper tractor lighting and how to use red flags when traveling on the highway.

The Pork Producers Assn. of Fayette County have arranged for the demonstration to help promote a statewide campaign to reduce accidents caused by misuse of the farm tractor.

Judge Oliver Kessel said he took into consideration that imprisonment might cost Warner his job, and work a hardship on his wife and three children.

Fayette County Soil Can Produce Quality Tobacco, WCH Man Proves

Proof that Fayette County soil will produce just as good tobacco as Kentucky, Tennessee and other Southern states, is in the garden of Lewis H. Wolfe, 621 S. Fayette St., where some of the finest tobacco to be found anywhere is now ready for harvest.

Last spring Wolfe, a veteran tobacco grower in Bracken County, Ky., until he retired and moved to Washington C. H. seven years ago, obtained some white burley plants in his home country, brought them here and set out 25 of them in his garden.

They started growing and continued to grow. One he has let go to seed stands 7 feet 5 inches in height.

All of the others have been topped so they would mature properly, and are four to six feet high, with high leaves.

USUALLY tobacco plants have 16 to 18 leaves when they are topped, but not the big plants grown by Wolfe. They run 26 to 30 leaves to the plant, and all are of a type of tobacco that would attract attention anywhere.

When the tobacco is cured the owner plans to take samples of it to the Kentucky market and show what can be grown in Fayette County, where no tobacco has been grown seriously for a quarter of a century.

The big plants will soon be split down the center with a very old tobacco knife, the handle of which bears imprints of the hands of many users.

The plants will then be cut at the ground, placed aside a four foot tobacco stick and hung in a building with plenty of air, to cure for a month or so.

BACK IN 1891, when Wolfe grew his first tobacco crop in Kentucky, he received $8.50 per 100 pounds for the "weed".

When he sold his crop just before moving to this city seven years ago, it brought $60 per 100 pounds.

Some idea of the money that is in the crop may be realized when it is known that an average crop runs 1,200 to 1,500 pounds to the acre, with many yields as high as 2,000 pounds. The top yield is about 2,400 pounds.

If 1,500 pounds of tobacco is raised to the acre, the income would be $900 per acre, and if the crop made 2,000 pounds to the acre the income at $60 per hundred pounds would be $1,200 an acre.

When the tobacco is grown for chewing purposes, about 4,500 plants are grown to the acre and when it is grown for cigars, the number of plants is doubled so the leaves will not be so large and coarse, and the tobacco generally will be of finer texture, and flavor, Wolfe says.

FORMERLY tobacco was allowed to carry through the winter and pass through a "sweet" about the middle of the summer, after which some of the sharp tang had vanished.

Now the tobacco is marketed 30 days or so after cut, is dried in huge kilns of the big tobacco companies, and processed without allowing it to remain in storage for months and go through the cleansing "sweat."

Although he smokes a pipe, Wolfe does not smoke the tobacco he grows.

SOME of the finest tobacco grown in the nation is produced in Highland County, where the White Burley variety is said to have originated.

Wolfe's "crop" was not seriously menaced by the big green tobacco worms which must be kept off of the plants, but a smaller worm, somewhat similar to the ordinary green cabbage worm, tried its taste buds on the tobacco, and immediately got the chewing habit. As a result, Wolfe had to keep a sharp eye out for them and dispose of them as soon as they appeared and started nibbling.

Would tobacco pay as a crop in Fayette County, when all of the VETERAN TOBACCO GROWER Lewis H. Wolfe, proves that Fayette County soil can produce wonderful tobacco. The stalk he is holding is seven feet 5 inches tall. He is also holding a tobacco stick for hanging tobacco, and a tobacco knife used in splitting the stalks.

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

Don't think for a minute that it is completely settled where the new Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati freeway is to cross Fayette County.

A few days ago engineers were busy on a preliminary survey which would locate the highway across northern Paint Township, and through Jefferson Township, passing north of Yatesville and south of Bookwalter.

It would cut through the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Crawford, of the State Rd., two miles north of the State Rd., or Route 734 thence southwestward through Jefferson Township a mile or more south of Jeffersonville, and near West Lancaster and Edgefield, through Clinton County, and on to Cincinnati.

The engineers stated that they were running a preliminary survey tentatively outlined from an aerial survey, and that later this fall a corps of engineers will make a complete survey of the proposed route, which would follow, to a large extent, a projected railroad survey across Fayette County back in the eighties.

Several months ago I mentioned the above route as a tentative one, and later the Highway Department issued a map indicating the route might pass through Fayette County a mile or so north of Washington C. H.

As a matter of fact three aerial routes were mapped, one of which would take the projected superhighway through near South Charleston and miss Fayette County entirely.

My information is that the route will not be decided for several months, and only after all surveys have been completed.

Fayette farmers in Paint and Jefferson townships are not pleased over the prospect of their farms being cut through by the great highway, which is to be built within the next two or three years as part of the chain of superhighways planned in Ohio and the nation as well.

FEW MELON PATCHES

Reports indicate that there are few sizeable melon patches in this community, where both watermelons and cantaloupes are grown, and that most of the melons reaching the local markets are grown outside of Fayette County.

Years ago there were many large patches of melons in various parts of the county, and invariably the growers sold their entire crop to those going to the premises after them, with possibly a few surplus being marketed at nearby stores.

This year the dry weather was too much for most of the melons in the county, and the crop has been an exceptionally light one on the dwindling acreage planted. Probably the oldest melon grower in the county is Oscar Glass, who lives on the Jeffersonville-Jamestown Rd. near the Greene County line. He has been raising melons for more than half a century, and has long been noted for his choice watermelons and cantaloupes.

This year his crop was almost a failure, due to dry weather and other causes.

THE DIESEL MYSTERY

Every time I see a diesel engine, which has largely revolutionized engines generally, I think of the inventor, Rudolf Diesel and his strange disappearance leaving a mystery which will never be solved.

In 1913, Diesel, at the age of 55 years, left Antwerp, with two friends, on a channel steamer bound for London where Diesel was to confer with business interests regarding the opening of a new Diesel plant in England.

He and his friends had dinner on the boat, and afterward strolled about the deck before retiring.

Sometime during the night Diesel vanished and no trace of him has ever been found. Whether he was murdered, fell overboard accidentally, or leaped into the channel waters, was never known.

He was born of German parentage, in Paris, and his first workable diesel engine was tested out in 1897, but it was years before he perfected it and the diesel engine came into general use.

Now railroads are converting their motive power into diesels; the diesels power great numbers of trucks and boats.

Shrine To Replace St. Louis Hospital

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Shriners plan to replace an old hospital for crippled children in St. Louis, Mo., with a new 60-bed building.

The Great Lakes convention completed a business session here this morning. A parade and pageant will wind up the two-day meeting here tonight.

Scientists Getting More Eggs From Hens Fed Tranquilizers

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP)—Humpty-Dumpt was born several years too soon.

Had he lived in this frenetic age of tranquilizers and antibiotics, he would ever have needed all the King's horses and men to try and put him back together again.

Reason: He probably would not have broken in his great fall.

Tranquilizers and antibiotics, widely used by humans, have now been fed to livestock and poultry. As a result, scientists at the Charles Pfizer Co. agricultural experiment farm near Terre Haute in western Indiana have improved on one of nature's most perfect packages—the egg shell.

THE FORMULA is simple—just add a minute amount of the antibiotic terymycin to the feed of laying flocks.

The results are astonishing—20 per cent tougher egg shells which means less breakage from the nest to the pantry, and more money for the farmer. Economists believe it may also mean cheaper eggs for the consumer's frying pan.

But the antibiotic doesn't work on the egg alone, it also makes happier hens. Happy hens lay more eggs, which again means more money for the farmer and cheaper eggs for the consumer.

Pfizer scientists admit their work still is in its early stages, but testimonials obtained by colleges support the claim that the antibiotics makes happier hens.

One poultry man, Oscar Wallin of Pequot Lakes, Minn., said antibiotics made his hens "so happy they sang all right." He also reported his flock doubled its egg production within 10 days.

IN ONE recent telephone check of 72 farmers in the Midwest, 50 said antibiotics increased egg production, 19 said it did not, and three did not know. Other flock owners have reported increases of as much as 50 per cent within two weeks after the drug was used.

Pfizer scientists say they believe hens given an antibiotic could be "coaxed" into laying about 25 per cent more eggs on the average. This would mean an extra case of eggs each month from a flock of 100 hens. They also estimate the drug has already added about 1½ million dollars to the farmers' incomes.

THE ANTIBIOTIC has also been fed to livestock. Again the results were astonishing.

Steers and lambs gained weight faster, used their feed more efficiently and graded out better when slaughtered.

And when a tranquilizer was added to the antibiotic, the results were even better.

The scientists believe that drugs may be part of the answer to the diminishing farm population, enabling fewer farmers to produce more and better products for the American dining table.

Round about Fayette County

By B. E. KELLEY

Don't think for a minute that it is completely settled where the new Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati freeway is to cross Fayette County.

A few days ago engineers were busy on a preliminary survey which would locate the highway across northern Paint Township, and through Jefferson Township, passing north of Yatesville and south of Bookwalter.

It would cut through the farm of Mr. and Mr. Vivian Crawford, or the Prairie Rd., two miles north of the State Rd., or Route 734 thence southwestward through Jefferson Township a mile or more south of Jeffersonville, and near West Lancaster and Edgfield, through Clinton County, and on to Cincinnati.

The engineers stated that they were running a preliminary survey tentatively outlined from an aerial survey, and that later this fall a corps of engineers will make a complete survey of the proposed route, which would follow, to a large extent, a projected railroad survey across Fayette County back in the eighties.

Several months ago I mentioned the above route as a tentative one, and later the Highway Department issued a map indicating the route might pass through Fayette County a mile or so north of Washington C. H.

As a matter of fact three aerial routes were mapped, one of which would take the projected superhighway through near South Charleston and miss Fayette County entirely.

My information is that the route will not be decided for several months, and only after all surveys have been completed.

Fayette farmers in Paint and Jefferson townships are not pleased over the prospect of their farms being cut through by the great highway, which is to be built within the next two or three years as part of the chain of superhighways planned in Ohio and the nation as well.

FEW MELON PATCHES

Reports indicate that there are few sizeable melon patches in this community, where both watermelons and cantaloupes are grown, and that most of the melons reaching the local markets are grown outside of Fayette County.

Years ago there were many large patches of melons in various parts of the county, and invariably the growers sold their entire crop to those going to the premises after them, with possibly a few surplus being marketed at nearby stores.

This year the dry weather was too much for most of the melons in the county, and the crop has been an exceptionally light one on the dwindling acreage planted.

Probably the oldest melon grower in the county is Oscar Glass, who lives on the Jeffersonville-Jamestown Rd. near the Greene County line. He has been raising melons for more than half a century, and has long been noted for his choice watermelons and cantaloupes.

This year his crop was almost a failure, due to dry weather and other causes.

THE DIESEL MYSTERY

Every time I see a diesel engine, which has largely revolutionized engines generally, I think of the inventor, Rudolf Diesel and his strange disappearance leaving a mystery which will never be solved.

In 1913, Diesel, at the age of 55 years, left Antwerp, with two friends, on a channel steamer bound for London where Diesel was to confer with business interests regarding the opening of a new Diesel plant in England.

He and his friends had dinner on the boat, and afterward strolled about the deck before retiring.

Sometime during the night Diesel vanished and no trace of him has ever been found. Whether he was murdered, fell overboard accidentally, or leaped into the channel waters, was never known.

He was born of German parentage, in Paris, and his first workable diesel engine was tested out in 1897, but it was years before he perfected it and the diesel engine came into general use.

Now railroads are converting their motive power into diesels; the diesels power great numbers of trucks and boats.

Ironton Walkout Settlement OKd

IRONTON (AP)—Work will resume at the Dayton Malleable Iron Co. here Monday as workers agreed to accept a company offer and ended their three-week strike.

Members of Local 3664 United Steel Workers of America had walked off the job Aug. 16 when a new contract was not signed. Friday they accepted the company's original offer of a 14-cent raise in wages and pensions.

The plant which employs 770 workers makes malleable iron castings for auto companies.

Shrine To Replace St. Louis Hospital

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Shriners plan to replace an old hospital for crippled children in St. Louis, Mo., with a new 60-bed building.

That's the report today by George M. Saunders of Chicago, secretary for the organization's 17 U. S. hospitals, at the annual convention here of the Great Lakes Shrine Assn.

The Great Lakes convention completed a business session here this morning. A parade and pageant will wind up the two-day meeting here tonight.

Move To Curb Reckless Teenage Drivers

Certainly it would be unfair and there is no reason for making an overall criticism of teenage drivers except those whose disregard of the public rights extend to carelessness and the drinking stage. No one questions that there are just as many such drivers beyond the teenage group.

However, it is reported, there are at least three states which have started measures to curb these youngsters.

It has been hoped and urged by many parents that driving excesses and carelessness will lessen from the fact that as a whole, the young drivers will profit by the lessons pointed out to them, faster than the confirmed drinkers and speed fiends who are older; in other words that teenagers will do a better and more cautious type of driving than most older persons.

We believe that a large majority of the young drivers under the age of 21, are careful and responsible, in spite of the bad example of many of their elders. However statistics produced in several places seem to show that the tragic number of accidents among teenage drivers is entirely out of proportion to older drivers in casualties due to a combination of intoxicants and speed.

New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut

are said to have recognized the problem and propose to deal with it. A number of state and regional agencies are tackling the job of putting some restraints on careless motorists under 21.

Perhaps this is something that more states should be thinking about, for the danger is not confined to New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. The tendency toward teenage recklessness is widespread, and Ohio has its share.

No matter how careful a driver may be in operating his own automobile, there is always the grim thought that tragedy may be just over the hill, or around the next curve, because some other driver chooses to be irresponsible.

Too many people are prone to accept traffic fatalities as routine, or to consider it futile to talk about reducing accidents. But obviously we cannot add to our recklessness by turning young drivers loose to do as they please.

The fact that three of our most densely populated states are wrestling with the problem through a campaign of police action and public education should be an invitation to us here in Ohio and elsewhere to do likewise.

Difficult Times for Ike

By George Sokolsky

President Eisenhower is having a difficult time in his second term as political leader, which is very different from his conception of the role of President.

His difficulty arises from several causes: 1. He does not seem to realize that ours is a congressional not a parliamentary system of government and that the President is not a prime minister; 2. He has undoubtedly been badly served by his staff and advisers, who failed to keep him informed as to the probabilities of congressional action and as to the shifts in public opinion to which Congress responds rapidly.

Probably his greatest disappointment arises from the fact that it is impossible to form a coalition government in this country, and that while the Democrats have been more gentle with him than the Republicans were with Harry Truman, nevertheless, they are Democrats and are looking after themselves. He also must recognize that the majority of his own party does not accept the modern Johnny-come-latties.

The Civil Rights bill is a case in point. The bill, as passed satisfies nobody. For some reason, not readily understood, President Eisenhower's advisers believed that he could get from Congress a bill which would totally change the political complexion of the South.

Such a bill could not pass. Instead there is a watered-down measure, difficult to enforce which gives no one any satisfaction. The best that can be said about it is that it is better than nothing at all so far as those who wanted such a bill are concerned.

The bill to "save the FBI files" while it does not affect the President, is nevertheless a reflection on President Eisenhower's appointments to the United States Supreme Court. The final bill completely overturned the Jencks decision written by Justice Brennan, an Eisenhower appointee, and it was passed in the Senate by a vote of 74-2 and in the House by a vote of 315-0.

Such a reversal of a Supreme Court decision by the Congress has rarely, if ever, been witnessed.

In this matter, it is to be noted that the President took no position and constitutionally he had none to take. Nevertheless, the court, as now constituted has been "liberalized" by Eisenhower appointees and has unquestionably outraged public opinion or overturn of the Jencks decision would not have been of such dimensions. Congress must reflect public opinion or many members will be defeated in the next election.

Paralleling this vote is the election of Joe McCarthy's successor in Wisconsin. President Eisenhower and the Republican organization had endorsed Walter Kohler, three elected governor of Wisconsin, son of a governor and a very personable citizen.

He ran as an Eisenhower Republican with the President's endorsement and support. He was roundly defeated by a Democrat in a normally Republican state, Sen. Proxmire.

The answer, of course, is that the ghost of Joe McCarthy continued to walk in that election. The McCarthyites in Wisconsin stayed away from the polls or they voted for the Democrat. Their action was anti-Eisenhower rather than anti-Kohler. Of course, it was a disappointment to President Eisenhower.

It lost his party the possibility of control of the Senate for another year; but worse than that, it may put ideas into the heads of McCarthyites in other parts of the country. It undoubtedly will. The size of the McCarthy following has never been clearly analyzed but its hard core appears to be growing larger since he died.

Both the defeat of the Jencks decision and the Wisconsin election give to modern Republicanism a severe blow. Professional politicians will look at it with eyes to the 1958 and 1960 elections. The professional Republican politician is particularly fearful about 1960 because he cannot see where the votes will come from to elect either Knowland or Nixon, one of whom is likely to be the Republican candidate.

While he realizes that the Democrats do not have a first-rate candidate to put forward, he also recognizes that the shifts of population during the past 40 years have made the Democratic party the normally majority party which the Republicans were from Abraham Lincoln to Herbert Hoover.

The Republicans not only must hold their own votes to win but must get many which normally go Democratic. They did that with Eisenhower. Can they do it with Nixon or Knowland?

Segregation Now Dead Issue In Hillsboro School System

HILLSBORO, Ohio (AP)—Hillsboro, which had its elementary school segregation troubles for more than two years, has started into a second year with Negroes and whites peacefully attending the same schools.

Integration in the elementary schools of this Highland County town of 5,100 population was completed last fall and except for some early shyness on the part of the Negro youngsters there was no difficulty.

But for more than two years before that the question of whether Hillsboro School Board was segregating Negroes was fought back and forth in the courts until the U. S. Supreme Court finally upheld a court of appeals order which directed immediate integration.

The troubles here started when the school board re-zoned the city. It left only Negroes in the old Lincoln School. A few Negro pupils were assigned to the former all-white Washington and Webster schools but a group of Negro parents, supported by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, took the issue to federal court. They claimed Negroes were being segregated.

The school board contended it intended to abandon the Lincoln School and integrate Negroes and whites as soon as new buildings could be completed at Webster and Washington.

U. S. District Judge John H. Druffel of Cincinnati upheld the board but was reversed by the court of appeals.

But the court delays gave the city time to complete one of the buildings and last fall integration was completed. The second building was completed in time for the second semester last winter.

The Lincoln School was abandoned and bids for its sale were taken by the school board earlier this week.

There are between 60 and 70 Negroes in the elementary schools. Both Negroes and whites have attended the junior and senior high schools here for many years.

There never was any serious disturbance here during the entire time the segregation issue was in the courts although a former county

Blood Transfusion Technique Refined

TOLEDO (AP)—Deaths caused by transfusions of too little or too much blood during surgery have been reduced by as much as 60 per cent by a new technique for measuring blood needs, the head of pathology at Maumee Valley Hospital reports.

The technique also has cut the volume of blood needed for transfusions by approximately 20 per cent, Dr. John G. Snavely told the Ohio Chapter of the American College of Surgeons here.

Dr. Snavely said blood requirements cannot be estimated merely of the patient's weight. For example an obese person might require a smaller transfusion than a slim one since less blood circulates through fatty tissues than through lean muscles.

Presbyterians Booked

CINCINNATI (AP)—More than 300 Ohioans are expected to take part in the 10th annual rally and retreat here of the Ohio Synod Council of Presbyterians here, Sept. 20.

official, opposed to segregation, set fire to the old Lincoln School. The building was not damaged seriously, however, and the official served a prison term for arson.

Last fall when both Negroes and whites entered the then combined Webster and Washington school there was only a handful of onlookers.

The situation has been equally quiet this fall.

"There is nothing like Arkansas here," said one Hillsboro resident last week, referring to the segregation disturbances at Little Rock, Ark.

"It's a dead issue here and the only thing left is the sale of the Lincoln building which probably will come at the next school board meeting."

Move To Curb Reckless Teenage Drivers

Certainly it would be unfair and there is no reason for making an overall criticism of teenage drivers except those whose disregard of the public rights extend to carelessness and the drinking stage. No one questions that there are just as many such drivers beyond the teenage group.

However, it is reported, there are at least three states which have started measures to curb these youngsters.

It has been hoped and urged by many parents that driving excesses and carelessness will lessen from the fact that as a whole, the young drivers will profit by the lessons pointed out to them, faster than the confirmed drinkers and speed fiends who are older; in other words that teenagers will do a better and more cautious type of driving than most older persons.

We believe that a large majority of the young drivers under the age of 21, are careful and responsible, in spite of the bad example of many of their elders. However statistics produced in several places seem to show that the tragic number of accidents among teenage drivers is entirely out of proportion to older drivers in casualties due to a combination of intoxicants and speed.

New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut

are said to have recognized the problem and propose to deal with it. A number of state and regional agencies are tackling the job of putting some restraints on carelessness motorists under 21.

Perhaps this is something that more states should be thinking about, for the danger is not confined to New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. The tendency toward teenage recklessness is widespread, and Ohio has its share.

No matter how careful a driver may be in operating his own automobile, there is always the grim thought that tragedy may be just over the hill, or around the next curve, because some other driver chooses to be irresponsible.

Too many people are prone to accept traffic fatalities as routine, or to consider it futile to talk about reducing accidents. But obviously we cannot add to our recklessness by turning young drivers loose to do as they please.

The fact that three of our most densely populated states are wrestling with the problem through a campaign of police action and public education should be an invitation to us here in Ohio and elsewhere to do likewise.

Difficult Times for Ike

By George Sokolsky

President Eisenhower is having a difficult time in his second term as political leader, which is very different from his conception of the role of President.

His difficulty arises from several causes: 1. He does not seem to realize that ours is a congressional not a parliamentary system of government and that the President is not a prime minister; 2. He has undoubtedly been badly served by his staff and advisers, who failed to keep him informed as to the probabilities of congressional action and as to the shifts in public opinion to which Congress responds rapidly.

Probably his greatest disappointment arises from the fact that it is impossible to form a coalition government in this country, and that while the Democrats have been more gentle with him than the Republicans were with Harry Truman, nevertheless, they are Democrats and are looking after themselves. He also must recognize that the majority of his own party does not accept the modern Johnny-come-latelies.

The Civil Rights bill is a case in point. The bill, as passed satisfies nobody. For some reason, not readily understood, President Eisenhower's advisers believed that he could get from Congress a bill which would totally change the political complexion of the South.

Such a bill could not pass. Instead there is a watered-down measure, difficult to enforce which gives no one any satisfaction. The best that can be said about it is that it is better than nothing at all so far as those who wanted such a bill are concerned.

The bill to "save the FBI files" while it does not affect the President, is nevertheless a reflection on President Eisenhower's appointments to the United States Supreme Court. The final bill completely overturned the Jencks decision written by Justice Brennan, an Eisenhower appointee, and it was passed in the Senate by a vote of 74-2 and in the House by a vote of 315-0.

Such a reversal of a Supreme Court decision by the Congress has rarely, if ever, been witnessed.

In this matter, it is to be noted that the President took no position and constitutionally he had none to take. Nevertheless, the court, as now constituted has been "liberalized" by Eisenhower appointees and has unquestionably outraged public opinion or overturn of the Jencks decision would not have been of such dimensions. Congress must reflect public opinion or many members will be defeated in the next election.

Paralleling this vote is the election of Joe McCarthy's successor in Wisconsin. President Eisenhower and the Republican organization had endorsed Walter Kohler, three elected governor of Wisconsin, son of a governor and a very personable citizen.

He ran as an Eisenhower Republican with the President's endorsement and support. He was roundly defeated by a Democrat in a normally Republican state, Sen. Proxmire.

The answer, of course, is that the ghost of Joe McCarthy continued to walk in that election. The McCarthyites in Wisconsin stayed away from the polls or they voted for the Democrat. Their action was anti-Eisenhower rather than anti-Kohler. Of course, it was a disappointment to President Eisenhower.

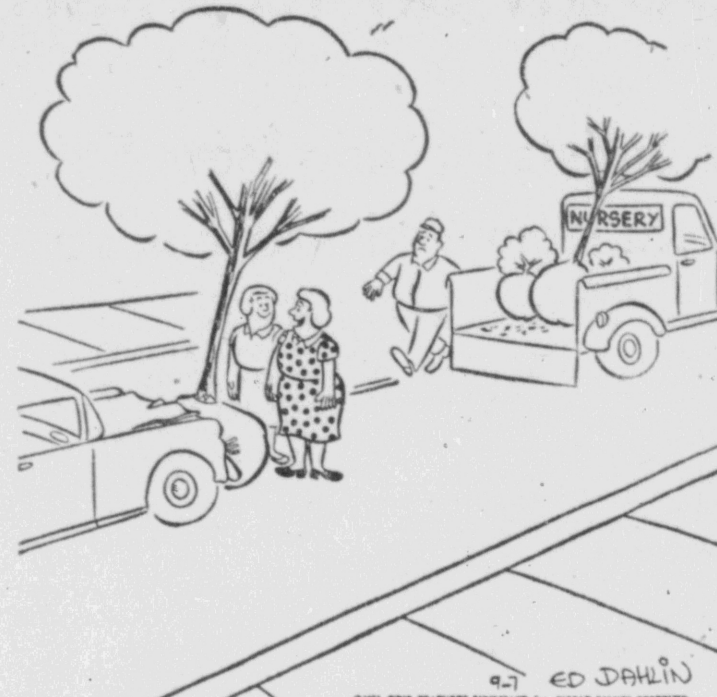

It lost his party the possibility of control of the Senate for another year; but worse than that, it may put ideas into the heads of McCarthyites in other parts of the country. It undoubtedly will. The size of the McCarthy following has never been clearly analyzed but its hard core appears to be growing larger since he died.

Both the defeat of the Jencks decision and the Wisconsin election give to modern Republicanism a severe blow. Professional politicians will look at it with eyes to the 1958 and 1960 elections. The professional Republican politician is particularly fearful about 1960 because he cannot see where the votes will come from to elect either Knowland or Nixon, one of whom is likely to be the Republican candidate.

While he realizes that the Democrats do not have a first-rate candidate to put forward, he also recognizes that the shifts of population during the past 40 years have made the Democratic party the normally majority party which the Republicans were from Abraham Lincoln to Herbert Hoover.

The Republicans not only must hold their own votes to win but must get many which normally go Democratic. They did that with Eisenhower. Can they do it with Nixon or Knowland?

Segregation Now Dead Issue In Hillsboro School System

HILLSBORO, Ohio (AP)—Hillsboro, which had its elementary school segregation troubles for more than two years, has started into a second year with Negroes and whites peacefully attending the same schools.

Integration in the elementary schools of this Highland County town of 5,100 population was completed last fall and except for some early shyness on the part of the Negro youngsters there was no difficulty.

But for more than two years before that the question of whether the Hillsboro School Board was segregating Negroes was fought back and forth in the courts until the U. S. Supreme Court finally upheld a court of appeals order which directed immediate integration.

The troubles here started when the school board re-zoned the city. It left only Negroes in the old Lincoln School. A few Negro pupils were assigned to the former all-white Washington and Webster schools but a group of Negro parents, supported by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, took the issue to federal court. They claimed Negroes were being segregated.

The school board contended it intended to abandon the Lincoln School and integrate Negroes and whites as soon as new buildings could be completed at Webster and Washington.

U. S. District Judge John H. Druffel of Cincinnati upheld the board but was reversed by the court of appeals.

But the court delays gave the city time to complete one of the buildings and last fall integration was completed in time for the second semester last winter.

The Lincoln School was abandoned and b's for its sale were taken by the school board earlier this week.

There are between 60 and 70 Negroes in the elementary schools. Both Negroes and whites have attended the junior and senior high schools here for many years.

There never was any serious disturbance here during the entire time the segregation issue was in the courts although a former county

Blood Transfusion Technique Refined

TOLEDO (AP)—Deaths caused by transfusions of too little or too much blood during surgery have been reduced by as much as 60 per cent by a new technique for measuring blood needs, the head of pathology at Maumee Valley Hospital reports.

The technique also has cut the volume of blood needed for transfusions by approximately 20 per cent, Dr. John G. Snively told the Ohio Chapter of the American College of Surgeons here.

Dr. Snively said blood requirements cannot be estimated merely of the patient's weight. For example an obese person might require a smaller transfusion than a slim one since less blood circulates through fatty tissues than through lean muscles.

CINCINNATI (AP)—More than 300 Ohioans are expected to take part in the 10th annual rally and retreat here of the Ohio Synod Council of Presbyterian Men, Sept. 20.

official, opposed to segregation, set fire to the old Lincoln School. The building was not damaged seriously, however, and the official served a prison term for arson.

Last fall when both Negroes and whites entered the then combined Webster and Washington school there was only a handful of onlookers.

The situation has been equally quiet this fall.

"There is nothing like Arkansas here," said one Hillsboro resident last week, referring to the segregation disturbances at Little Rock, Ark.

"It's a dead issue here and the only thing left is the sale of the Lincoln building which probably will come at the next school board meeting."

Garden Club Offers Ideas For Fall

Washington Garden Club, with an eye on the calendar and the remembrance of early frosts in previous years, as well as an eye on this year's garden and the promise, "Wait till next year" gives the following suggestions for garden work in September.

If you have not been satisfied with your garden this year, get busy. Plan for next year, order bulbs for planting soon, get after the evergreens, clean up the flower borders, order new roses.

Keep on cutting the grass as long as it grows vigorously. Do not however, cut as closely as in the spring.

Watch for early frosts and cover tender plants with newspaper or muslin.

It is important that all late blooming plants such as chrysanthemums, fall perennials, etc., be kept well watered.

It will not be necessary to feed the roses from now on, but they should be sprayed after each rain with a rose dust to prevent black spot.

Remember Sept. 15 marks the last safe opportunity for transplanting seedlings. Also it's the last chance to successively divide iris this year.

Harvest the gladiolus as soon as the foliage turns brown. Lift and store dahlias, cannas and caladium as soon as the tops are blackened by frost.

Do not fertilize trees or shrubs at this time of year; it may start new growth which will winter-kill.

This is really the season when evergreens are nearest dormant. Transplant now for best results. Shape up trees and shrubs now while the foliage is on them and you can see what they will look like.

Last of all, remember that too many people think that gardening is over when the leaves begin to turn brown or even after the first frost. The true flower lover continues his planting and his healthful garden work all through the season.

Medic Says Big Thing Wrong With Women Is 'Marriage'

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

What is wrong with women? Well, says Dr. John A. Schindler, co-founder of the famous Monroe Clinic at Monroe, Wis., and author of the best-selling book, "How to Live 365 Days a Year," the principal thing wrong with women is marriage.

Dr. Schindler has just written a new book, "Woman's Guide to Better Living," in which he says that the bulk of medical practice in the United States is concerned with emotionally induced illness (E.I.I.). Three out of four of these emotionally upset patients in every doctor's office, he says, are women. Moreover, most of them are married women.

Now the good doctor doesn't suggest that we should become a nation of spinsters and bachelors, but he, being of an inquiring turn of mind, began probing for the answer to a highly important question—why do so many married women blow their tops?

The reason, he now states, is Florea said the island is named Pulau Pising. It's four miles long, two miles wide, and populated by fishermen.

The photographer said he may apply for "foreign aid."

Miller stopped to drag the animal off the highway. When he nudged it with his foot, the steer jumped to its feet, glared balefully at Miller and raced off to join his 12 companions along the road.

Garden Club Offers Ideas For Fall

Washington Garden Club, with an eye on the calendar and the remembrance of early frosts in previous years, as well as an eye on

If you have not been satisfied

Remember Sept. 15 marks the Harvest the gladiolus as soon as

Last of all, remember that too many people think that gardening is over when the leaves begin to turn brown or even after the first tinues his planting and his healthful garden work all through the

Medic Says Big Thing Wrong With Women Is 'Marriage'

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

What is wrong with women?
Well, says Dr. John A. Schind-ler, co-founder of the famous Monroe Clinic at Monroe, Wis., and author of the best-selling book, "How to Live 365 Days a Year," the principal thing wrong with women is marriage.

Dr. Schindler has just written a new book, "Woman's Guide to Better Living," in which he says that the bulk of medical practice in the United States is concerned with emotionally induced illness (E.I.I.). Three out of four of these emotionally upset patients in every doctor's office, he says, are women. Moreover, most of them are married women.

Now the good doctor doesn't suggest that we should become a nation of spinsters and bachelors, but he, being of an inquiring turn of mind, began probing for the answer to a highly important question—why do so many married women blow their tops?

The reason, he now states, is

U. S. Photographer Owns Exotic Isle

HONOLULU (AP)—Photographer
John Florea says he is now the owner of an island in Indonesia.

Florea just returned from the southeast Asia Country, where President Sukarno made him a present of the island, in return for traveling with the rebel forces in the fight against the Dutch for Indonesian independence.

Florea said the island is named Pulau Psiang. It's four miles long, two miles wide, and populated by fishermen.

The photographer said he may apply for "foreign aid."

'Dead' Teams Refusing To Stay That Way

Chisox Still Insisting They Have Chance To Win Pennant In AL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ever watch a bunch of kids playing cops and robbers, where the "dead" guys get up and start blasting away again? That's just what's happening in the major league pennant races. The dead guys won't stay chilled.

In the American, New York's Yankees, apparently home free a while ago, are down to a 4½ game lead again. They booted a two-run lead and lost 4-3 at Washington Friday night while the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 4-3 on a ninth-inning homer by relief pitcher Dixie Howell that again put them just three games behind in the lost column.

In the National, Milwaukee's Braves, looking like a cinch to clinch it quick after a Labor Day doubleheader sweep, blew a 3-0 lead and lost their third in a row, 5-4 to the last-place Cubs.

They held on to a 6½-game lead as second-place St. Louis let a 4-2 edge slip away in a 5-4 Cincinnati victory. Brooklyn's Dodgers (remember those old gaffers?) now are only seven games behind after winning their third straight with a 3-0 job on the New York Giants.

Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia 3-2 on Hank Foiles' solo home run in the sixth that gave righthander Ron (7-15) Kline his fifth straight.

In the other AL games, Detroit defeated Cleveland with Jim Bunning winning his 17th, and Boston closed fast to nip Baltimore 4-3 with Gene Stephens, subbing for Ted Williams, one of the big guns.

The Yankees dropped this one with two out in the ninth. An error by second baseman Jerry Coleman enabled the tie-breaking run to score after the Nats had loaded the bases with three walks from loser Bob Grim.

Washington chased Sal Maglie, making his starting debut as a Yankee, with two runs that tied it 3-3 in the seventh while Truman Cleaver and Bud Beyer four-hit the champs. Beyer won his sixth.

The White Sox scrambled from behind with a run in the sixth that junked Alex Kellner's three-hit shutout, then gained a tie with two in the eighth on singles by Luis Aparicio, Nellie Fox, Minnie Minoso and Sherm Lollar.

Howell then belted his third home run of the year to beat reliever Wally Burnette without out in the ninth.

Bob Trowbridge had the Cubs blazed on four hits again until they bagged their five in the seventh. It all started with a one-out error by Ed Mathews. Then ex-Brave Chuck Tanner singled with the bases loaded for two Ernie Banks doubled for one and Walt Moryn closed it with a two-run single. Bob Rush won his fifth with relief help.

The Redlegs, who had consecutive home runs from Frank Robinson and George Crowe in the first, nailed it with three in the sixth, two on Jerry Lynch's pinch-hit home run. It was the 10th pinch homer of the year for the Redlegs, tying the NL record set by the 1954 Giants.

Willard Schmidt lost his second in relief of Larry Jackson. Southpaw Don Gross won it.

Johnny Podres three-hit the Giants, allowing none after the fifth, for his 11th victory and sixth shutout, tops in the majors. The Brooks had 10 hits, two each by Carl Furillo, and Gino Cimoli who figured in the insurance runs after Elmer Valo's first inning homer off loser Ray Crone.

The Red Sox, shut out for six by Hec Brown, scored two in the seventh on Jackie Jensen's 20th homer, scored again in the eighth on Stephens' single and won it in the ninth on Pete Daley's two-out double off Billy Loes.

Errors by Chico Carrasquel and Bob Avila on the same play gave the Tigers three sixth-inning runs that cracked a 2-2 tie.

Chisox Fortunes Linked to Nellie

CHICAGO (AP)—Mighty Mite Nellie Fox, convinced the Chicago White Sox can win the American League pennant, keeps his team "hanging tough" with his unbelievable scrappy play.

Fox "is the big reason we're still in the running," says manager Al Lopez. "Without him, I'd hate to think where we'd be."

The diminutive second baseman collected three hits and a walk Friday night as the second place Sox whipped Kansas City, 4-3, to close the gap in the American League race to 4½ games while New York dropped a 4-3 decision to the Washington Senators.

Cincinnati Legion '9' In Tournament Finals

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP)—Robert E. Bentley Post 50 of Cincinnati, a three-time U. S. Legion baseball champion, withstood a ninth inning rally by Willanette Heights post of Portland, Ore., Friday night to chalk up an 8-6 victory and advance to the finals of the Little World Series.

First Tournament Games Next Thursday

Miami Trace Schools Emphasizing Baseball

While football may take the spotlight in some high schools when the summer vacation ends, it is still baseball in the four high schools in the Miami Trace district.

Actually, there has been hardly any interruption in the sport this year for many of the boys at Bloomingburg, Jeffersonville, Madison Mills and Good Hope.

When the Babe Ruth League schedule came to an end, it was almost time for school to start. And when it did, the summer sport started again, too.

Harold Thomas, principal of Wayne High School at Good Hope and coordinator of the Miami Trace high school sports program this year, said one of the reasons baseball is getting so much attention this fall is the interest developed through the Babe Ruth League during the summer vacation.

PRACTICE STARTED, Thomas said, in most of the four schools the day the students came back to classes. However, he pointed out that, while the boys are in shape to play, the coaches have not had time to do much toward aligning the players as teams in the first week.

But, that is not causing much concern, although the first game of the baseball tournament is less than a week away. Coaches feel the boys have not lost their "touch" or timing in the short time since so many of them played in the Babe Ruth League. These boys are expected to be the keystones of the high school teams.

The first two tournament games are scheduled next Thursday afternoon after school. The Good Hope team, under Coach Roger Hoffman, new there this year, will play the Bulldogs, coached by Everett Rudolph, at Bloomingburg, while Jeffersonville's Tigers, coached by Jeff Hildreth, are playing Coach Tolman Mills' Warriors at Madison Mills.

The losers of those two games will meet Sept. 16. The winners will also tangle at the same time. The tournament, a double-elimination affair, will come to a close Sept. 25. If the final develops a deadlock the playoff will be the following day.

NOT UNTIL the baseball champion of Fayette County is decided by the tournament, will basketball, the big winter sport for the county schools, get under way officially.

Under rules of the Ohio High State Athletic Assn., basketball practice may not start officially at schools which do not have football until Oct. 1 and in schools which do have football until Nov. 1.

However, that is no bar to informal practice all year for many youngsters who are at it on their own for hours on end.

Since none of the Miami Trace high schools has football, basketball practice may start there under the direction of the coaches Oct. 1. That means that many of the boys in these schools will have less than a week between the two sports.

Rams Rally Brings Win Over Browns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Los Angeles Rams won their third game in four tries Friday night with a comeback 20-14 victory over the stumbling Cleveland Browns. The Browns now have a 1-3 record along the National Football League exhibition trail.

A fourth quarter, three-play maneuver good for 78 yards, turned the trick for the Rams, who scored in every period. Jon Arnett returned a punt for 34, Ron Waller scored for 35 on the next play and Joe Marconi bulled the final nine to win it.

The Browns scored in the first quarter on Jim Brown's two yard plunge and in the last period on Lew Carpenter's one yard buck. Tank Younger scored the other Ram TD, while Paige Cothren kicked two field goals for the Rams.

Olympic decathlon champion Milt Campbell, in his first and only appearance as a pro, returned a kickoff for Cleveland 35 yards. It was an impressive debut for the big fellow, who joined the club just a day or two ago.

Tonight, the world champion New York Giants are in Boston against the Green Bay Packers and the San Francisco 49ers play the Chicago Cards in Seattle. There is a three-game card on Sunday, with the Chicago Bears and the Philadelphia Eagles meeting in Kansas City, the Baltimore Colts and Washington Redskins at Baltimore and Detroit and Pittsburgh tangling at Buffalo, N. Y.

Athletics To Play Two Games Sunday

The Washington C. H. Athletics of the SWO League will play a post-season double-header Sunday afternoon at the Oakland Ave. park. P. Milton will be the Athletics' opponents for both games.

An independent team, Hamilton has played 60 games this summer and has an outstanding record.

Starting pitchers for the Athletics will be Kenny Robinett and Dick Moffitt.

The Athletics will be in full force Sunday, except for three high school players, who were regulars during the vacation. The three who won't see action are Billy Herman, shortstop, and outfielders, Jimmy Smith and Ronnie Wilt.

Another post-season game will be played here Sunday afternoon, Sept. 15. The Athletics opponents for this one will be the SWO All Star team. Game time is 2 p. m. As with all SWO games, no admission will be charged.

Giants Draw Crowds Only if Bums Present

NEW YORK (AP)—Want a simple reason for the New York Giants' planned shift to San Francisco? They've been able to count 20,000 or more cash customers at the Polo Grounds only five times this season—and it was Brooklyn's hated Dodgers who lured 'em in.

The old rivalry paid off again Friday night with 21,373 paying patrons on hand as the Brooks defeated the Giants 3-0 in the last scheduled night game of the season in the Polo Grounds.

Coaches Scout Lion Opponents

Linden and Xenia Teams Seen in Action

By now the WHS Lions and their coaching staff have some idea of what kind of opposition they will be up against in their first two football games of the season.

Head Coach Fred Domenico and two assistant coaches, Marvin Merritt and Denzil Leggett, went to Columbus Friday night to see Linden-McKinley in action against the Columbus South and West teams in the annual preview while three assistant coaches, Jack O'Rourke, Clyde Cramer and Herb Russell went to Miamisburg to catch the Xenia Central Buccaneers' performance in another preview.

The Lions will open their season next Friday night against the Panthers at Linden-McKinley and the following Friday night, Sept. 20, they will play their first home game against the Buccaneers at Gardner Park here.

When the coaches went into a huddle early Saturday morning just before going to the practice field with the squad for a workout, they agreed that what they saw at Columbus and Miamisburg convinced them that, while neither the Panthers nor the Buccaneers are invincible, the Lions will have their work cut out for them when they clash with them if they expect to win.

DOMENICO reported that the Panthers are of good size and played against the South and West teams as a well-coordinated unit, smoothly and with precision. He summed it up by saying: "I'm not concerned so much by their (Panthers) size as with their experience and teamwork."

The reports of the coaches who saw the Buccaneers made much the same kind of report on the Xenia team.

Meanwhile, the Lions are being drilled on fundamentals, something Domenico described as "essential" in view of the number of inexperienced boys on the squad.

Evans, a 160-pounder, has been driving harder as he hits the line, and Evans has been showing his old speed and elusiveness, he said. Lynch, the coach said, caught his eye principally "because of his potential as a quarterback."

Infield Flubs Prove Costly To Indians

DETROIT (AP)—The infield grounders, normally a routine out, is turning into the Detroit Tigers' biggest scoring threat against the Cleveland Indians.

At Cleveland last week, the Indian infield committed four errors as the result of infield bouncers, allowing the Tigers to score four unearned runs. The Indians hung on long enough to win that game 6-5 in 10 innings.

The Tribe infield turned a potential doubleplay into a three-run Detroit rally Friday night and lost to the Tigers, 5-2.

With the score tied 2-2 in the sixth and one out, the Tigers loaded the bases with a single and two walks. Pitcher Jim Bunning came to bat and bounced a grounder to shortstop Chico Carrasquel.

Carrasquel fumbled the ball and one run scored. He recovered and flipped the ball to second baseman Bobby Avila, attempting to force Reno Bertoia coming down from first. The toss was too late. Avila hurried off a throw to first base trying to get Bunning but the throw went into the Detroit dugout. Two more runs scored. Bunning ended up on third base and the Tigers won the game.

Early Wynn, bidding for his 14th victory, started for the Indians and was the loser, his 16th. He pitched six innings, was rapped for seven hits, all five runs.

Mike Garcia, bidding for his fourth straight victory, will pitch for Cleveland today. He will oppose Frank Lary.

Miceli Wraps Up Saxton's Career

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ex-welterweight champion Johnny Saxton, his comeback campaign wrecked at the start by unranked Joe Miceli, says he has had enough and will quit the ring.

Miceli applied the finishing touch to Saxton's rapid descent from boxing heights Friday night. Jumping Joe, a 28-year-old New Yorker who has been in and out of the ratings for years, clouted the former king of the 147-pounders unmercifully for three rounds at Capitol Arena. Saxton went into the fight a 2-1 favorite.

Dr. Clark Halstead, the ring physician, examined Saxton after the third and declared Johnny unfit to continue.

Columbus Jets Doomed To Tailend Finish

COLUMBUS (AP)—Doomed to finish no higher than last year, and perhaps one notch lower, the Columbus Jets today enter the last two days of the International League season.

The best the Jets can do is finish seventh, the same slot they ended up in last season. At worst, they will wind up in last place. They lost Friday night to Richmond, 2-1.

Ohio Grandma Nears End of Lengthy Hike

WEST CARRY TWP., Maine (P)—Grandma Emma Gatewood is on the last leg of her 2,026-mile hike from Mt. Oglethorpe, Ga., to Maine's Mt. Katahdin.

The 69-year-old Gallipolis, Ohio, woman, who left her home near her five children and 16 grandchildren because "I have to baby sit," started out Friday on the last 100 miles of her walk.

This is the second hike over the Appalachian Trail for Mrs. Gatewood, and she expects to complete it about Sept. 16. She is the only woman to have walked the trail from end to end in one hike.

Friday she made the first of two boat crossings since she began her long walk April 22. She christened a new Maine Forest Service boat while crossing the Kennebec River. The next river crossing will be west branch of the Penobscot.

Her two last climbs were Baldpate Mountain and Old Spec, both on the Maine-New Hampshire border, which she negotiated while carrying her 14-pound pack.

IT'S SO EASY TO PLACE A WANT AD.

GUEST OF HOPALONG—Ray Hoppes, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hoppes, Miami Trace Rd., won himself a West Coast trip in a recent Hopalong Cassidy contest by Med-O-Pure Dairies Ray who saved more gun flaps and shields from Med-O-Pure products than any other youngster in Central Ohio, was met in Columbus last Sunday by Tex Wheeler, host of the Hopalong Cassidy TV show and TWA hostess Dixie Lauer, shown with Ray above. Ray won the airplane trip for himself and one parent, but his mother, father and sister, Brenda, flew to the coast and were personally conducted by Hoppy on a boat trip to Catalina Island and on a tour of Hoppy's ranch. The Hoppes family also visited Disneyland before returning home Friday.

Midwest College Footballers Prep for Coming Campaigns

CHICAGO (P)—Midwest football briefs:

Michigan—Fullback John Herstein and left end Gary Pransht missed the second straight day of scrimmaging with knee injuries. Ead Chuck Teuscher scored three times with passes, including a 50-yarder from halfback Fred Julian.

Iowa—Fullback John Nocera, a Youngstown, Ohio, junior, burst through for long gains in a scrimmage. Quarterback Randy Duncan and halfbacks Bill Gravel and Mike Hagler rounded out the No. 1 backfield.

Wisconsin—Sydney Williams, starting quarterback last year, was tabbed as most improved by coach Milt Bruhn. "He's been thinking football all summer and is dead in earnest to do a good job," said the coach.

Illinois—Various ailments kept four players from taking part in the Illini's first scrimmage. Sidelined were end Dave Rewerts, center Ken Sutter, No. 2 center Bob Henderson and tackle Don Yeazel. Fullback Jack Delvaux suffered a dislocated thumb in the workout.

Northwestern—Quarterback Chip Holcomb, son of the Wildcats' athletic director, worked in the No. 1 position in an initial scrimmage. He hit backs Wilmer Fowler and Bob Mc Kiever with long passes as the first team scored two touchdowns.

Ohio State—Don Fronk is the fourth center to be sidelined with injuries. Ed Brech has taken over.

Ohio's GOP 'Team' Plans Unit Campaign

COLUMBUS (P)—Republican state officeholders will campaign together next year rather than individually as in the past. The decision was reached Friday at a closed meeting of the GOP State Committee here.

The agreement on a caravan-style election campaign virtually assures re-election of Gov. C. William O'Neill, U.S. Sen. John W. Bricker and others on the Republican "team," party politicians predicted.

Besides Bricker and O'Neill, other officeholders attending the meeting were Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, Treasurer Roger W. Tracy, Auditor James A. Rhodes and Atty. Gen. William Saxbe. Secretary of State Ted Brown was out of town. None has announced for re-election.

State GOP Chairman Ray C. Bliss of Akron, also in attendance, said he and O'Neill will hold a series of congressional district meetings with party officials to map campaign strategy. He said such meetings will aim to help campaigns in rural areas.

Bliss also disclosed that about half of O'Neill's 1956 campaign debt has been paid, and he indicated that the $14,000 balance would be paid by the party.

Furrow Queen Is Fulton County Girl

COLUMBUS (P)—The Queen of the Furrow is Ann D. Lane, a pretty 16-year-old Fulton County girl. She will reign over the World's Conservation Exposition and Plowing Matches Sept. 17-20 at Peebles.

The 5-foot 5, brown-haired Ann, one of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lane, Rt. 3, Delta, was chosen Friday night from among 10 finalists, winners of regional competition.

The four judges based their decision on attractiveness, poise and personality.

Ann will go to New York City Sunday where next week she will greet plowmen from 14 nations. They will arrive in New York en route to the world competition.

She also will appear on several television shows in New York.

Ann, who hopes to become an airline hostess, won the regional title Tuesday at the Hancock County fair. She represented Defiance, Fulton, Hancock, Henry, Putnam, Paulding, Williams, Lucas and Wood counties.

The other nine finalists, who will serve as Ann's court, are Rosalie Ridgeway, 18, Rt. 1, New Vienna; Peggy Parks, 16, Rt. 3, Oak Hill; Connie Nethers, 16, Toboso; Carol Packer, 19, Rt. 2, Adena; Jane Mitchell, 18, Rt. 3, Plain City; Janice Sidley, 20, Painesville; Ruth Ann Kiracone, 18, Rt. 3, Camden; Marvene Hoover, 19, Rt. 1, Crestline; and Judy Reeser, 18, Bradford.

More than 1,000 Ohio farm girls entered the competition.

Fall Brings Increase In Accidents

COLUMBUS—The end of summer, which follows fast upon the heels of Labor Day, is reflected quickly in accident statistics. J. W. Dykes, president of the Ohio State Safety Council said Home casualties increase, more youths are involved in traffic accidents—usually as pedestrians—and for some reason, deaths from collisions between motor vehicles tend to increase, Dykes said.

Falls present the big danger in the home during any month, but the most noticeable increase in residence casualties comes from fire, Dykes pointed out.

VFW Post's Liquor Permit In Jeopardy

A gambling citation against Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 3762, of 110 1/2 S. Fayette St., is one of 28 cases involving alleged violations of liquor laws to be heard by the Ohio Board of Liquor Control in Columbus next week.

The post has a D-4 permit—a private club license for the sale of beer, wine or liquor by the glass until 1 a. m.

Hearing of the complaint against the Washington C. H. organization will be at 8:30 a. m. Thursday in the board's hearing room, 33 N. Third St., and will be open to the public.

A Grate Evening

stops. Says: "Watchah doing, mistah?"

Chief: "This young lady lost her ring. I'm trying to find it."

BOY: "HEY, MISTAH, yah ought to lift up dah grate."

Chief (frowns): "Not a bad idea."

But a brief demonstration of brute strength indicates the grate and the sidewalk are inseparable.

7:36 p. m.: Another boy walks past, turns, returns, stops. No ice cream cone, but the boy repeats the phrase: "Watchah doing, mistah?"

Chief (reluctantly jovial): "Well, I guess we've got a bank robber cornered down there. We're trying to find him, Ha Ha. . ."

Boy: "Huh?"

7:45 p. m.: Three boys walk up this time, and stop without passing. One says: "Watch ah doin' mistah?"

Chief (more reluctant): "Well, they tell me a dog slipped through this grate. Must have been a pretty thin dog, don't you think?"

One boy: "Huh?"

Another: "His mother gave him a quarter to go to the movies and he lost it" (the three fairly roll on the sidewalks in their hysteria at the intrinsic humor of this remark).

The third (after the laughter subsides): "Hey, mistah, yah ought to lift up the grate."

(There follows a chorus of enthusiasm, which is only partially quelled when the chief points out that this has been tried. Finally, the boys catch on and pass.)

7:42 P. M.: A drunk staggers up, bends over and breathes down the chief's neck. He squirts into the grate a few moments, then wheezes: "Wudge a doing, mizduh?"

Drunk (angrily begins to move on): "Happens ev'ry time. Ashk a question, gedda wish ansher (he turns and returns, thoughtfully). "Hey mizduh. . ."

Chief: "Yeah?"

Drunk (a heavenly glow comes over his face): "Hey mizduh!"

Chief: "Yeah?"

Drunk (practically angelic): "Hey, mizduh, mizduh, why entcha lifupa grate? Hey mizduh, hey!"

Chief (brushes him off): "O. K. O. K."

AND SO the evening goes. The chief fishes with his hook the crowd cheers, the girls sit stonelike at the side.

Finally, after nearly 50 minutes of effort, the chief retrieves the ring. His face glows warmly as he hands it to the girl, who disappears wordlessly into the night.

The chief climbs into his truck and returns to the fire house, where the man on duty is reading a paper. Slowly, the man on duty raises his head: "Dja find da ring?"

Chief: "Yeah. With the hook."

Fireman: "Heck, if you'd waited, I woulda told ya how to do it easy."

Chief: "How's that?"

Fireman: "Easy. Just lift up. . ."

Chief: "He never gets a chance to fish."

Minor Accidents
Reported to Police

A 21-year-old driver was charged with failure to yield the right of way Friday afternoon when his auto collided with another vehicle on Oakland Ave. near Briar.

Police said a car driven by Richard L. Butcher, of 531 E. Elm, came out of Briar Ave. and collided with another vehicle driven by Harvey B. Brown, 47, of 411 Eastern Ave. Brown was going north on Oakland.

Damage was to the left front fender, hood, and hub cap of the Brown car, and the left front fender, headlight, bumper and grille of Butcher's.

Mrs. Mary Alice Pittman 38, of 420 Fifth St., told police she backed out of her front yard Friday night and damaged the door of a car owned by Donald Rayburn, 419 Fifth St., parked across the street.

Damage was to the left front fender, hood, and hub cap of the Brown car, and the left front fender, headlight, bumper and grille of Butcher's.

Grandpa, Boy Make Deal on School Grades

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Grandpa wants 6-year-old Douglas P. Moreland to get good grades in his school in Ft. Pierce, Fla., but he wants him to be normal, too.

Grandpa V. Bickelhaup and Douglas entered into a solemn contract, complete with red seals, witnesses' signatures and all the trimmings, when Douglas visited here this summer.

Douglas will enter the first grade this fall, and the contract binds Grandpa to pay him 50 cents for every "A" received on each monthly report card.

When Douglas receives "A" grades on all his subjects, grandpa will dig deeper for a $1 bonus. An entire year with "A" grades in all subjects for each monthly report period will produce a $25 bonus from grandpa.

But grandpa knows young boys sometimes are noisy and get into mischief—and that's the way it should be. One paragraph of the contract says:

"Whereas the party of the second part emphatically desires that the party of the first part do not become a 'sissy,' 'goody-goody' or 'teacher's pet,' it is mutually agreed that deportment is not to be considered a subject under the terms of this agreement."

4 Check Forgers
Given Sentences

TOLEDO (AP)—Four men convicted of forging government checks were sentenced in U.S. District Court Friday. Judge Frank L. Klobb told them he would double the penalties if they ever appear in his court again.

The men were Edward L. Shoe, 36, of Houston in Shelby County, five years in prison; his brother Raymond, 23, also of Houston, four years; Charles W. Shipp, 25, of Wapakoneta and Ralph Sage Jr., 30, of Sidney, both four years.

The four were arrested in July after Raymond Shoe attempted to pass a forged check in a Wapakoneta store.

Marrying Month
Is Still June!

June is still the marrying month so far as the marriage license department of the Probate Court is concerned. Even so, 16 applications for licenses were issued in August against 11 for the same month in 1956.

During July 11 applications were received—the same number as last July.

But June's applications, however, far exceeded those received in 1956. Twenty-seven licenses were sought compared with 16 in June of 1956.

Chicago's 'Mad Ripper' Nabbed after 8th Stabbing

CHICAGO (AP)—A lean, tousled ex-night watchman was seized as Chicago's "Mad Ripper" Friday night, police said, shortly after the stealthy stabber knifed his seventh and eighth victims.

Joseph P. Caraher, 39, was captured after a blocks-long chase by a group of rock-throwing men who drove him into the arms of an off-duty policeman.

The chase began when two men said they saw Caraher stab a 12-year-old girl on the Northwest Side. They roused neighbors and raced after the fleeing attacker.

"Why are they picking on me?" Caraher mumbled as Policeman John Keane held him at gunpoint until more law officers arrived. He cursed his captors as "German spies."

Police said Caraher was drunk and talking incoherently. They reported he was carrying a blood-stained pearl handled switchknife.

HOMICIDE Detective St. James Traut said Caraher "is definitely the stabber" who slashed eight persons in Chicago since Monday, six of them on Friday.

Four of the knife victims identified Caraher as their assailant. "I never stabbed nobody. I was doing a service," Caraher rambled on at the Racine Avenue police station. Earlier he had told a newsman he went on a stabbing spree "because they're trying to hold me up."

No charges have been filed against Caraher.

Caraher was caught after Jimmy Darnell, 20, and Ted Daniels, 35, saw him threaten Christine Uccizewick, 14, and Jeannie Nytz, 12. The girls were backing away from Caraher and crying.

Darnell and Daniels yelled at him and he suddenly jabbed a knife into Christine's arm.

Picking up rocks and other debris, the men gave chase.

A photostat of Caraher's army discharge found in his hotel room showed he was honorably discharged as a private in 1944 for medical reasons.

Police said they also found a long rambling essay referring to the Kaiser, the German army and several minority groups.

A Grate Evening

stops. Says: "Watchah doing, mistah?"
Chief: "This young lady lost her ring. I'm trying to find it."

BOY: "HEY, MISTAH, yah ought to lift up dah grate."
Chief (frowns): "Not a bad idea."

But a brief demonstration of brute strength indicates the grate and the sidewalk are inseparable. 7:36 p. m.: Another boy walks past, turns, returns, stops. No ice cream cone, but the boy repeats the phrase: "Watchah doing, mistah?"

Chief (reluctantly jovial): "Well, I guess we've got a bank robber cornered down here. We're trying to find him. Ha Ha. . ."

Boy: "Huh?"
7:45 p. m.: Three boys walk up this time, and stop without passing. One says: "Watch ah doin' mistah?"

Chief (more reluctant): "Well, they tell me a dog slipped through this grate. Must have been a pretty thin dog, don't you think?"

One boy: "Huh?"
Another: "His mother gave him a quarter to go to the movies and he lost it" (the three fairly roll on the sidewalks in their hysteria at the intrinsic humor of this remark!).

The third (after the laughter subsides): "Hey, mistah, yah ought to lift up the grate."

7:43 P. M.: A drunk staggers up, bends over and breathes down the chief's neck. He squints into the grate a few moments, then wheezes: "Wudge a doing, mizduh?"

Drunk (angrily begins to move on): "Happens ev'y time. Ashk a quession, gedda wizsh ansher (he turns and returns, thoughtfully). "Hey mizduh. . ."

Chief: Yeah?
Drunk (a heavenly glow comes over his face): "Hey mizduh!"

Chief: "Yeah?"

Drunk (practically angelic): "Hey, mizduh, mizduh, why entcha lifupa grate? Hey mizduh, hey!"

Chief (brushes him off): "O. K. O. K."

AND SO the evening goes. The chief fishes with his hook the crowd cheers, the girls sit stonelike at the side.

Finally, after nearly 20 minutes of effort, the chief retrieves the ring. His face glows warmly as he hands it to the girl, who disappears wordlessly into the night.

The chief climbs into his truck and returns to the fire house, where the man on duty is reading a paper. Slowly, the man on duty raises his head: "Dja find da ring?"

Chief: "Yeah. With the hook."

Fireman: "Heck, if you'd waited, I woulda told yah how to do it easy."

Chief: "How's that?"

Fireman: "Easy. Just lift up. . ."

(He never gets a chance to finish).
